REBOOT DEVELOP BLUE | 2019

With great power comes great responsibility

Dear games industry friends, I am both humbled and proud to be able to welcome you, together with our tiny tireless team, yet again, for the 6th year in a row to incredibly special edition of Reboot Develop Blue 2019 game developers and games industry conference. Reboot Develop Blue this year stands at the crossroads of being not just one of the most unique and interesting, very finely crafted game developers conferences in the world but also truly one of the biggest anywhere. Featuring more than 140 speakers in our really ground-breaking speaker lineup that spans 9 parallel tracks is a feat we are especially proud of! And this is not where our dreams, ambitions and plans stop... we are already looking far unto the horizon with our huge Canadian venture Reboot Develop Red 2019 happening this year in Banff and then in 2020 just few days prior even bigger Reboot Develop Blue we are finally preparing the launch of delayed Reboot Develop Uni 2020 next door in picturesque Cavtat, an industry conference solely focused on students and newcomers to our industry! We all hope you will enjoy next three days full of incredible content as we have enjoyed building this event during the last 12 intensive and challenging months!

Benjamin Charbit

Darewise Entertainment, CEO

➤ CEO of Parisian studio Darewise Entertainment and Vice President of Syndicat National du Jeu Vidéo, Charbit's rise within the videogames industry has been swift. With his origins in investment banking he brought an analytical eye, economic savvy and a personal passion for video games to his debut role at Ubisoft in 2011. Initially accountable for the monetisation design, development and strategy in the Ubisoft's F2P teams, in 2013 Benjamin took key learnings from the games-as-a-service division into the world of AAA development, becoming Content and Monetisation Director on Assassin's Creed. In January 2018 he, along with Viktor Antonov opened Darewise Entertainment as a development studio.

Ben Judd

DDM, Partner, Executive VP of DDM Japan

➤ The first foreign producer at a major Japanese publisher, Ben worked on a variety of Capcom's biggest franchises from Resident Evil and Devil May Cry to classics like Mega Man. His experience in the US branch office and the Japanese head office, along with producing multiple international collaborative projects, gives him a unique understanding of how to best negotiate deals between companies several oceans apart. Ben leads DDM's Japanese initiative as it continues to expand its global reach.

Benjamin Mitchell

Imagination Technologies, Developer Support Engineer

➤ Benjamin Mitchell is passionate about games and game development. He has experience in a wide range of games programming areas, and loves to learn more in his spare time too. As a Developer Support Engineer for PowerVR at Imagination Technologies, he enjoys a variety of tasks including developing tools, analysing graphics application performance, and helping external developers with their graphics problems. Outside of gaming, he is learning Mandarin, and has a keen interest in sports.

Paul Wedgwood

Supernova Capital, Founder

➤ Entrepreneur and gaming fanatic, Paul Wedgwood started London based video games developer Splash Damage in 2001. Under Paul's leadership, Splash Damage has grown from a modest games development team to a studio which has created some of the world's most engaging multiplayer experiences. After 17 years at the helm, Paul stepped down as CEO of Splash Damage and founded Supernova Capital LLP, with the goal to build more happy, healthy and profitable studios worldwide.

Brandon Sheffield

Necrosoft, Creative Director

Brandon Sheffield is creative director of Necrosoft Games, developer of Gunhouse, Gunsport, and Oh, Deer! He has worked on over a dozen titles as narrative director, designer, and biz dev/marketing/other nonsense. He writes a web comic called Hot Comic for Cool people, and also consults for a number of companies and conferences in advisory capacities. He likes weird old games, weird old music and weird old towns, so if you know anything about any of that, you should probably let him know.

Branislav Siles

Atomontage Inc., CEO / Co-Founder

Branislav had his first epiphanies about the inevitable volumetric future when he won 256-byte competitions in the European demo scene, two decades ago. He has since dedicated his career to developing volumetric graphics technologies that today show a glimpse of what's possible and how we can only scale to the sci-fi visions of the OASIS, Metaverse, and the Matrix if these virtual worlds are simulated and rendered in a structurally simple, volumetrically sampled way.

Catherine Channon

PR Expert

Beginning her career in independent retail and trade marketing Cat moved into journalism in 1998. She worked in radio, TV, specialist online and print media. At Vivendi she launched World of Warcraft and Half Life 2. At Take-Two she was behind the scenes for the launch of Grand Theft Auto: Vice City. As Head of International Communications at Warner Bros. she led publicity, community, social media and influencer campaigns for huge gaming and entertainment brands including: LEGO, Harry Potter, Mortal Kombat and Lord of The Rings. An avid campaigner with an ethical but commercial approach to comms she has also spent the last decade working on pro-bono and not-for-profit communications campaigns both inside and out of the games industry with no budget and limited resources.

Interactive Empathy Citizenship and Storytelling in Video Games

Thursday 11 April, 11:30 – Place: Zeuz Stage

Roundtable speakers:

- Renaud Charpentier (FR)
- Andrej Kovačević (HR)
- Hendrik Lesser (DE)
- Anne Toole (USA)

Moderator:

- Srdan Laterza

Do games have the power to change the world by enhancing empathy amongst the worldwide audience?

Games that tackle serious social issues have the power to inspire players' empathy by letting them feel the world from the outsider's standpoint. As the most immersive medium, games also change our everyday lives by impacting economy, storytelling, and culture. Prominent industry experts, from indie to AAA studios, have been gathered for this panel to explore the importance of interactively told stories and talk about how games do shape our narratives.

This round table is part of a project carried out by the Goethe-Institut Kroatien and the Institut français de Croatie, with the support of the Franco-German Cultural Fund. It aims to raise awareness about the importance of citizenship and mutual understanding through the development of dedicated video games. The planned activities will focus on improving writing skills amongst students and young professionals. The goal is to commit a wide and renewed audience on citizenship-related topics.

The Franco-German Cultural Fund was set up in 2003 to mark the 40th anniversary of the Elysée Treaty. This programme demonstrates France and Germany's desire to reinforce their cooperation in the cultural sector, by supporting projects carried out by national cultural institutes and the cultural offices of embassies, in close collaboration with local cultural stakeholders.

Jonas Antonsson

Raw Fury, Troublemaker / Founder

➤ Jonas is an Icelandic entrepreneur that has founded several companies in the games space. 6 years ago he moved to Sweden, where he worked at Paradox Interactive. In the beginning of 2015 he founded Raw Fury, and independent publisher of games, which he now runs. The company has established itself firmly in a short time and enjoyed success for both itself and the developers that it has worked with. Some of Jonas's friends suspect he might be a vampire. He does not deny that this might be true.

Justin Ma

Subset Games, Co-Founder / Artist

➤ Artist and designer Justin Ma teamed up with Matthew Davis to develop their first game, FTL: Faster Than Light. Released in 2012, FTL received worldwide attention and praise for uniquely putting players in the captain's seat of a spaceship. Their second project, a minimalist tactics game called Into the Breach, was released early 2018 to critical acclaim and commercial success. Travel and food-obsessed, Justin started working in the games industry in 2009 at 2K Games Shanghai, later co-founding Subset Games in 2011.

Julian Mautner

stillalive studios, CEO

➤ Julian is the founder and managing director of stillalive studios, best known for the Bus Simulator series and the highly anticipated SciFi strategy game Drone Swarm. Over the past 7 years, he has formed an internationally respected team of talented devs, focused on technically ambitious simulation, management and strategy games. The growing team of stillalive studios creates own IPs like Drone Swarm and Rescue HQ as well as it works on franchises like Bus Simulator. Four years ago, the studio released the Kickstarter backed action-adventure Son of Nor.

Julie Heyde

VRUnicorns, Co-Founder / CEO

➤ Julie Heyde is a game developer + #ChickenBitch @VRUnicorns. She has a creation crush on semi-realistic VR sports games with a twist of dark humor & brutality alongside a passion for quirky flat games. IRL she is in the forest with her pony Shayla or sporting in the ocean.

Jose Emilio Munoz

Arm, Software Engineer

➤ With a background in Electronics and Computer Science, José Emilio joined Arm to work on the Mali family of GPUs, initially on their driver development and instrumentation tools, and for the past two years on performance analysis and developer support for mobile gaming.

Kate Edwards

Geogrify, CEO / Principal Consultant

➤ Kate Edwards is the CEO and principal consultant of Geogrify, a consultancy which pioneered content culturalization, and is the former Executive Director of the International Game Developers Association (IGDA). In addition to being an outspoken advocate who serves in several advisory/board roles, she is a geographer, writer, and corporate strategist. Following 13 years at Microsoft, she has consulted on many game and non-game projects for BioWare, Google, Amazon, and many other companies. Fortune magazine named her as one of the "10 most powerful women" in the game industry in 2013 and in 2014 was named by GamesIndustry.biz as one of their six People of the Year. In 2018, she was honored with Reboot Develop's annual Hero Award and also presented with IndieCade's annual Game Changer Award. She is also profiled in the December 2018 publication Women in Gaming: 100 Professionals of Play.

3Lateral

Kris Rose

Khronos Group, Developer Relations

➤ Kris' background lands squarely between computer hardware and the video game industry having worked at both Intel and AMD on their Developer Relations teams. He now heads up Developer Relations globally at The Khronos Group where he is working on improving the overall developer experience around Vulkan and evangelising the API. Kris is also currently advising a UK start-up developing an exciting new graphics technique that could change how we view computer graphics in the near future. Kris also assists game developers with unique projects to make connections with publishers and platform holders.

Lois Wang

XDS advisory

➤ Lois started her career working as an artist in a game outsourcing company. She developed her management experience through working with clients from all over the world making console, PC, social, mobile games as well as trading card and toys. Working at both outsourcing and development studios, the one thing that is consistent in her book is to create delightful experiences and success communication with all members in the team. Lois is determined to support both internal and external team working as one toward to the next win!

Larisa Percinlic

Ekipa2 part of Outfit7 Group, Director of Design and Animation

➤ Starting out as a multi-skilled game artist at Zootfly, Larisa Percinlic has been a UI art specialist at Outfit7 Group since 2015. She prides herself on designing UI that "players love to touch", and has done so on global hits like My Talking Tom 2, Talking Tom Gold Run, My Talking Hank and Talking Tom Pool. She's currently leading the UI team on Outfit7 Group's next, as-yet-unannounced big release.

Six Foot, Game Designer

➤ Renee Blair is currently a game designer for Six Foot, focusing on combat and systems design for Dreadnought. Previously she has worked for Hi-Rez Studios and Boss

Key Productions on Jetpack Fighter, LawBreakers, and Radical Heights. In academia Renee has worked in education, UX, and accessibility, earning her master's degree in human-computer interaction from the Georgia Institute of Technology. Renee is also regularly involved in game jams and conferences, having previously participated in Pirate Jam, as a speaker for the Xbox Women in Gaming Luncheon, and as an IGDA Scholar.

Richard Franke

Magic Notion, Director / Kitty Powers

➤ Richard Franke is the Director of Magic Notion Ltd and the creator of Kitty Powers' Matchmaker and Kitty Powers' Love Life. He also plays Kitty Powers' herself, the drag queen star of both games. Richard started doing drag around 2008 as a hobby, for a number of reasons, his love of costumes, his love of drag queens, and his desire to get better at being in front of a crowd! Richard has worked on many award-winning AAA games in a variety of roles and in several genres since graduating, including Burnout, Need for Speed, BLACK, Tearaway, Dreams etc.

Richard Huddy

Samsung Electronics, Head of Game Ecosystem

➤ Richard leads the Game Ecosystem Team based in Samsung Electronics' R&D center in the UK, part of Samsung's Galaxy GameDev program. That's the team that supports developers in Europe (and occasionally worldwide) to make games look their best on Samsung's high end phones. Richard has over 20 years of experience in graphics and gaming and loves pixels more than almost anything else.

Robin Hunicke

Funomena, Co-Founder / CEO

➤ Robin Hunicke is the Co-founder of the independent, San Francisco game studio Funomena. Her titles include Luna (PS4), Journey (PS3), Boom Blox (Wii) and MySims (Wii). She is also Professor of Art at UC Santa Cruz, Director of the Art Games & Playable Media BA and the Digital Arts and New Media MFA. Robin is also an outspoken evangelist for diversity of thought and participation in both design and business. She believes that by broadening the game community and expanding the feelings game designs explore, developers will make better, more broadly appealing games.

Ryan Payton

Camouflaj, CEO and Founder

➤ Ryan is the founder and CEO of Camouflaj, and advisor to Kowloon Nights and Makers Fund. Ryan started his career as producer on Metal Gear Solid 4 at Kojima Productions in Tokyo. He then returned home to direct Halo 4 at Microsoft until he started Camouflaj, a Seattle-based game studio behind République and a new, recently announced game he won't be able to talk about!

Sam Carlisle

Microsoft, Sr. Director, External Partner Relations

➤ Sam came to the games industry with a background in Behavioural Analysis as a consultant specializing in training businesses in negotiation and partnering. During this time Sam also maintained a passion for comics and gaming. In 2006 he committed full time to games by joining Sumo Digital as an artist and becoming Outsource Manager in 2009. In this position he successfully guided Sumo's Indian art studio into becoming a fully integrated partner, while managing the developer's rapidly expanding outsource program which stretched across several simultaneous (often cross-platform) titles for a variety of publishers, including Microsoft, Sony, Sega and EA.

Saku Lehtinen

Remedy Entertainment, Art Director

➤ Saku has worked for Remedy Entertainment since 1996. He has had a directorial role in many of Remedy's games, most notably as Art Director for Alan Wake and Max Payne 2. His main focus is the overall game experience, especially when it comes to story-driven moments. He has also worked in areas such as audio directing, music production, art direction, franchise development, outlining content pipelines and technology functionality. Saku was the Cinematics Director on Max Payne and Max Payne 2: The Fall of Max Payne. Alongside Sam Lake, he worked on the concept development of Quantum Break and the game's cinematics.

Ste Curran

Game Designer / Speaker / Consultant

➤ Ste Curran is a game designer, speaker and consultant. He works with small teams around the world to assess and develop prototypes, and writes and delivers monologues about life and design which have been described as "life-changing" and "an hour of nothing". He co-presents One Life Left, the oldest videogame radio show in the world; co-hosts Marioke, the popular game development karaoke singalong, and co-founded the Gelato Diners Conference, San Francisco's most delicious GDC. He wrote this bio on his own.

Raw Fury is a boutique publisher. We (un)publish games. Sometimes you need to undo a thing before you can redo it. That's how we think when it comes to publishing games, hence that "un" stuff at the beginning. For us it's important to build long-term partnerships with developers where both sides feel they are equal and in this together. We care about experiences and emotions, and we look for magic. Are you making magic? Drop us an e-mail at rebelrebel@rawfury.com.

RAW FURY

Toby Ow

Sony Interactive Entertainment, Production Supervisor

↳ Toby is responsible for budgeting and supervising projects supporting Sony Worldwide Studios developers in art, motion capture, scanning, animation, cinematics, and external development. He has helped manage outsourced waterfall and agile projects for game art assets, game co-development, R&D software technologies, and internal studio project management tools for PS3, PS Vita, and PS4 exclusive titles.

Tomasz Kaczmarczyk

SUPERHOT Team, Founder / Business Director

↳ Tom is the guy running business stuff in SUPERHOT Team, the studio most people recognize for their undeniably consistent naming skills and the blockbuster indie hits SUPERHOT and SUPERHOT VR. Tom was one of the original founders of the studio and has had the pleasure of seeing it grow from 5 people working on borrowed desks in 2014 to a still growing crowd of over 40 people with offices in two cities in 2018. Personally, he's hoping to turn more indie devs away from treating business development as an elaborate cargo cult and lure them towards the fine art of actually looking at a goddamn spreadsheet for a change.

Tom Crago

Tantalus, CEO

↳ Tom is the CEO and owner of Melbourne-based videogame developer Tantalus, a studio with more than forty acclaimed titles to its credit, including a handful of million-unit sellers such as The Legend of Zelda: Twilight Princess HD. Tom is a past President of the Game Developers' Association of Australia. He is presently a Board Member of the not-for-profit Australian National Development Index. His first book, Flashbacks from the Flow Zone is published internationally by Hardie Grant, and his hybrid artwork/videogame Materials recently appeared at the inaugural National Gallery of Victoria Triennial, in what was the largest art exhibition ever staged in Australia.

Tomislav Gojevic

Nanobit, Business Development / Project Manager

↳ Tomislav has been a gamer his whole life, and has worked in the gaming industry for the past 4 years. As a business development and project manager in Nanobit he makes sure that projects are delivered on time, that they bring value and fun to the people using them and a sense of pride to the people creating them! He's a reliable and energetic problem solver who enjoys interacting with people and optimizing business operations. He has a very cool nickname, Tomahawk, from his early hoop-shooting days, and his all-time fave games include Fallout 2, Baldur's Gate 2, Max Payne, God of War and Uncharted.

Tomislav Pongrac

Gamepires, Creative Director / Co-Founder

↳ During the late 80s, Tomislav started experimenting with 2D-computer graphics for the Amiga demo scene. In the mid-90s, his group of friends got together and founded Croteam, where he worked on many games including the Serious Sam series. In the last 25 years, he has worked on nearly all aspects of the artistic part of gamedev – concept art, 2D, 3D, animation, level design, game design, gameplay, and other. At the moment, Tomislav is the creative director at Gamepires, a super ambitious team currently working on their huge open world survival game SCUM.

Tomislav Uzelac

2x2 Games, CEO

↳ Tomislav joined the world of video games industry a decade ago as an indie developer, following several long stints as programmer on music related projects (most famously creating the mp3 playback engine for WinAMP). His first project was Unity of Command, a strategy game noted for its clever design, merciless AI and "exceptional ergonomics". Tomislav's interests include game design, game programming in python, and all things related to the business of indie game development and he is currently intesively working on finishi development of Unity of Command 2 with lunch to happen in next few month.

Zeb West

Stoic, Senior Producer

➤ Zeb met Arnie, John and Alex, key member of Stoic studio working as a producer at BioWare on Star Wars: The Old Republic. As project manager of both Triple A and Indie games, he strives to foster creativity, humanity and humor among artists, programmers and designers. Recently he has been active in key producer role on Banner Saga series. When not working in video games, he creates silly works of puppetry about cosmic angst and performs them at burlesque shows.

Ziva Cizman

Outfit7, VP of Marketing

➤ Working for Outfit7 since 2014, Ziva Cizman leads an international team as the VP of Marketing. Her focus has been on identifying the unique selling points of games as well as making sure all marketing activities can be measured. Her previous role at Google gave her an inside track to excelling at user acquisition and advertising. Global marketing campaigns for My Talking Tom 2 and Talking Tom Gold Run have helped Outfit7 achieve over 9 billion downloads and counting.

Karlo Jez

Croteam, Senior Engine Developer

➤ Karlo Jez is a senior engine developer at Croteam who also dabbles in game and tools programming. With a huge interest in graphics and multi-platform support, Karlo is one of the key figures in Croteam's presence on almost all gaming platforms known to man, including PC, consoles, mobile and VR. When he's not writing code and developing the Serious Engine and Serious Sam 4, Karlo is making worlds as a co-founder and team lead of a small indie game-dev team currently working on a turn-based action RPG.

Luka Hrabar

Croteam, Terrain Engine Programmer

➤ Luka is one of the newer additions to the Croteam crew with just 3 years under his belt. Starting with gameplay and engine programming, he immediately showed that he would gladly involve himself in any and all aspects of game development. Consequently, Luka is currently working on one of Croteam's largest technological challenges yet – the terrain engine. Even after years' worth of feature additions the terrain engine and its toolkit is ever-growing. Much to his amusement, Luka is among the select few who know how and why it all works.

Robert Sajko

Croteam, Senior Engine/Gameplay Programmer

➤ Robert Sajko is a hands-on developer and a 10-year veteran at Croteam, where he has helped ship a number of key titles on multiple platforms, including Serious Sam 3: BFE, The Talos Principle and Serious Sam VR: The Last Hope. While he excels in engineering, his interests span beyond that. Alongside his partner in crime, Karlo Jez, he is a co-founder of a small indie game-dev team currently working on a turn-based action RPG, where he took on the role of a lead game designer.

Elle Osili-Wood

Host / Presenter

➤ Elle Osili-Wood is a video gaming and entertainment presenter, and editor and presenter of PlayStation Access, the official channel of PlayStation UK. Having started her career as a political reporter for the BBC, she quickly gravitated toward her life long passion for video games, and has appeared on air to cover gaming for outlets including BBC Breakfast, BBC Click, Channel 4's Gadget Man, Sky News and The Guardian. Elle is also the founder of YouTube channel Bear vs. Grenade, and was named a "rising star of YouTube" by Red Bull.
